Advancing quality and safety through in-home Ig infusion care

For the right patients, in-home infusion can be the safest way to receive immunoglobulin (Ig) therapy. Advanced Infusion Care (AIC) specializes in home Ig infusion therapy and is ready to partner with you to provide an alternative to hospitals or infusion centers for therapy that puts patient safety first.

NURSING CARE THAT EXCEEDS EXPECTATIONS

AIC nurses, certified in intravenous and subcutaneous medication administration, provide in-home Ig infusion care along with self-infusion and infusion pump training to all patients and caregivers.

Our nurses:

- + Wear personal protective equipment (PPE) and follow all federal and state safety guidelines as well as recommendations from the WHO and CDC
- + Provide annual safety retraining for all SubQ patients
- + Are trained to handle adverse events during patient visits
- + Have more than 350 years of combined Ig home infusion experience

We go above and beyond to ensure our nursing services are of the highest quality. Every week, we produce a report to confirm all processes and protocols are being followed and to discover any potential areas of improvement. More than 97% of our nurses are employees of AIC, helping us ensure the highest levels of care quality.

A TEAM-BASED APPROACH THAT SUPPORTS PATIENTS AND EMPOWERS PROVIDERS

Every AIC patient has 24/7 access to a dedicated team of clinical and support staff, decreasing response time, increasing consistency and improving outcomes and patient safety.

In addition to infusion nurse specialists, each patient's team includes clinical pharmacists and intake managers. The team collaborates closely with you and your office, providing clinical consults, coordinating care delivery, answering patients' questions and offering billing and reimbursement support.

Our team-based approach to infusion care helps us achieve a 97% patient medication adherence rate and 99% patient satisfaction.
