Advanced Infusion Care (AIC) now offers new Grifols infusion therapy Xembify®

The recently released 20% subcutaneous immunoglobulin therapy expands treatment options offered by Advanced Infusion Care.

Valdosta, GA—Advanced Infusion Care, a division of AIS Healthcare, now offers Xembify®, developed by Grifols for the treatment of primary immune deficiency disease (PIDD).

AIC's nationally accredited home infusion teams collaborate closely with physicians to provide specialized in-home infusion services. This new therapy option, offered under a limited distribution partnership with Grifols, expands AIC's ability to serve immunoglobulin (Ig) infusion patients.

"We're proud to be able to add Xembify® to our growing list of Ig infusion therapies," said Jud Hall, Senior Vice President at AIS Healthcare. "This new therapy from Grifols can help us provide additional treatment options for our PIDD patients."

Xembify® is for the treatment of PIDD in patients 2 years of age and older. Approved by the U.S. Food and Drug Administration on July 3, 2019, the therapy was launched in the United States on November 18 and is now available at all AIC locations.

Like all AIC patients, PIDD patients receive a high level of care from AIC, including 24/7 access to clinical and support staff. Every patient is assigned a dedicated team of professionals, including clinical pharmacists, infusion nurse specialists, patient care managers and intake managers, to provide support throughout the treatment process.

For physicians, AIC is a full-service care delivery partner. We have contracts with multiple immunoglobulin suppliers like Grifols to help ensure prescribed therapies are always in stock. We also work directly with patients, insurance companies and physician offices to secure all needed authorizations and complete paperwork.

AIS Healthcare is dually accredited by URAC and the Accreditation Commission for Health Care (ACHC).

Physicians interested in AIC care services should contact their AIC representatives to get started or visit us at aiscaregroup.com/advanced-infusioncare-overview.php.
